My name is Bipasha, and I am currently an Information Systems student at the University of Texas at Arlington. I am driven by a strong interest in cybersecurity and a desire to protect both people and organizations from digital threats. I enjoy working with technology and have a natural strength in analyzing complex problems and breaking them down into practical solutions. My values revolve around data privacy, ethical technology use, and creating safe digital environments. I am eager to keep learning and improving my technical skills, and I believe the Google Cybersecurity Certificate will help me build hands-on experience and prepare me for an entry-level cybersecurity role where I can apply my curiosity, dedication, and problem-solving mindset.
